We published a news item on the new accessibility regulation some time ago. Page 7 of the manual covers how you can make your content accessible. You will also need to ensure that you publish your documents in an accessible format. A new part of the regulation is that you should have an 'Accessibility Statement' on your website. We've always provided an accessibility statement at the bottom of every page as a matter of good practice. We will be making some changes to this to keep it in line with the new guidelines.

Please let me know if you would like clarification on any of the above.

Regards,
Ray
